Editorial Committee Regulations for Global Health and Nursing

Enactment: April 1, 2015
Revised: October 30, 2016
Revised: January 1st

Article 1 (Purpose)
This regulation stipulates matters related to the “Global Health and Nursing (Global Health Nurs)” editorial committee (hereinafter referred to as the “Editorial Committee”), organized in accordance with the regulations of the Research Institute of Nursing Science, Pusan National University.

Article 2 (Organization)
This committee should have at least four editorial members, including one editor-in-chief.

① The editor-in-chief is appointed by the head of the Research Institute of Nursing Science, Pusan National University, upon the recommendation of a member of the steering committee.

② The members shall be finally decided upon the recommendation of the editor-in-chief, after approval by the Research Institute of Nursing Science steering committee, and shall be commissioned by the head of the Research Institute of Nursing Science, Pusan National University.

③ The editor-in-chief recommends members considering the following criteria, but a person who has not been disciplined relative to research ethics shall be the basic principle. However, this excludes cases wherein the disciplinary action related to research ethics has been received and the execution thereof has been terminated.

1. A Ph.D., a professor of nursing, or a person recognized as having an equivalent expertise.
2. A person with experience in reviewing a manuscript or in publishing a paper in a journal registered (candidate) with the Korea Research Foundation or an international journal.
3. A person with experience as an editor of a journal.
4. A person possessing the latest knowledge in the research field.

④ Special editors (statistics, English, etc.) shall be appointed, as necessary.

Article 3 (Term)

The term of members and the editor-in-chief shall be two years, subject to reappointment.

Article 4 (Responsibility)

The Editorial Committee shall review and decide on the following matters and report them to the steering committee. However, the review of the manuscript follows a separate review regulation.

① Editing and publication of academic journals.

1. Matters concerning editing and publication;
2. Review of received papers and decisions on whether to publish;
3. Decisions on reception and publication fees.

② Preparation for journal evaluation.

③ Implementation of projects to improve the quality of academic journals.

④ Review of regulations related to the publication of academic journals.

⑤ Selection and management of reviewers.

⑥ Other matters delegated by the steering committee.

Article 5 (Selection and management of reviewers)

① The reviewers are finally selected upon the recommendation of the Editorial Committee, approved by the steering committee, and commissioned by the head of the Research Institute of Nursing Science (with prior consent from the head)

② The selection of reviewers is made, considering the following criteria:

1. A Ph.D., a professor of nursing, or a person recognized as having an equivalent expertise.
2. A person who has experience publishing papers in a journal registered (candidate) with the Korea Research Foundation or an international journal.
3. A person who has experience reviewing a manuscript in a journal registered (candidate) with the Korea Research Foundation, international journal, or a thesis.
4. A person who has experience as an academic journal editorial committee member.
5. Those who possess the latest knowledge in the research field.

③ The term of the reviewer is two years, and may be reappointed.

④ If an external reviewer is deemed necessary for the professional review, the editor-in-chief may designate a special reviewer and request for one.

⑤ The Editorial Committee shall keep all the facts related to its work confidential.
